Searching for a Career Fit

Deciding what you want to major in and what career field you want to pursue in the future can feel daunting. While it is not essential to know exactly what you want to do in the future, it is important to start the exploration process during high school. Below are a few resources that can help you in finding careers that would fit your interests and personality. Additional resources are available on the WKHS Counselor website www.wkhscounselors.com. Please feel free to use one or all to help search for careers that might be a good match for you.

www.YouScience.com: This website provides students with the opportunity to take 11 "brain game" assessments to determine your aptitudes (natural strengths) as well as your interests and will provide you with detailed career information that fit you. We have a free access code for all students that needs to be picked up from a Counseling Center secretary or your school counselor to access the site for free.

www.mymajors.com: This website allows you to create a free account and complete a career quiz that will give you 5 recommended majors.

www.16personalities.com: This website allows you to complete a short, free Myers-Briggs Type Indicator test that will tell you more about your personality and careers that would fit. In addition to the information found on this website about careers that would fit your personality, you can also take the results to do an additional search for careers that fit your identified personality code.

At the end of the questionnaires, what majors/ career fields were recommended for you?

Which two recommended majors/ career fields make the most sense to you? Why?

Which two recommended majors/ career fields make the least sense to you? Why?

Were there any careers or majors you expected to see listed as being recommended, but were not included? Why do you think those might not have been recommended?
